Antarctica is a landmass surrounded by ocean and the Arctic is an ocean surrounded by land. The Arctic region is dominated by the Arctic Ocean, which covers the northern extreme of the globe from Canada to Russia and northern Europe. The Arctic Ocean is surrounded by several landmasses including Norway, Russia, the United States (), Canada, Denmark (), and Iceland.

Arctic and Antarctic Sea Ice: How Are They Different

The Antarctic is almost a geographic opposite of the Arctic, because Antarctica is a land mass surrounded by an ocean. The open ocean allows the forming sea ice to move more freely, resulting in higher drift speeds. However, Antarctic sea ice forms ridges much less often than sea ice in the Arctic.

The Arctic vs Antarctic: which should you visit

What is the difference between Arctic and Antarctic? • Arctic is the region on the top-most corner of the globe while Antarctic at the bottom most corner. That is Arctic is at the North pole and Antarctic at the South pole. • Antarctica is a continent surrounded by the world ' s stormiest seas.

Antarctica is in some ways the opposite of the Arctic. Rather than water surrounded by land, it is land surrounded by water. And that difference has shaped the climate of Antarctica in major ways. The Southern Ocean, which surrounds Antarctica, is the only place where a ring of ocean, unbroken by land, circles the planet.

Arctic vs. Antarctic | National Snow and Ice Data Center

The name Antarctica is the romanised version of the Greek compound word (antarktik é), feminine of (antarktik ó s), meaning "opposite to the Arctic", "opposite to the north".. Aristotle wrote in his book Meteorology about an Antarctic region in c. 350 BC. Marinus of Tyre reportedly used the name in his unpreserved world map from the 2nd century CE.
