In a snow storm of silence, quiet wraps itself around her a smothering blanket taming ghostly shadows that claim the night. So as not to drown in the chill of the soundless shore she stuffs the suffocating Silence into a bottle corks it, hurls it out to sea hoping to reach a willing soul. As soon as she set the bottle free, watched it

The tragedy that saw five snowmobilers killed in an avalanche last weekend in B.C. was preventable, says Avalanche Canada. The men who died were Vincent Eugene Loewen, Tony Christopher Greenwood, Ricky Robinson, Todd William Chisholm and John Harold Garley. Three of the five snowmobilers killed had deployed avalanche airbags designed to "float" along the surface of a moving avalanche, but the

The last snow storm to blanket Toronto happened just before Dec. 25, bringing a white Christmas to the city. Earlier on Tuesday, the Halton public and Catholic school boards, as well as the Peel public and Dufferin-Peel Catholic boards, cancelled bus service for the small number of students attending in-person classes.
